NEW RECRUITS are sworn in by Capt. Kays. Company I now has nineteen men and wants 112 by camp time next August. It can have as many as 165 men, six officers, and one warrant officer.

HIGH IN AIR. The armory in Warren tops off its many changes with a new mechanism for the flag. Warren firemen assist in the job by rolling out the big hook.

Co. I Spruces Up

The armory in Warren has a new look and the boys who sign up for duty there are going to enjoy several good breaks. Not only is the building lighter, cleaner, warmer, and more useful than ever before, but there is much to be gained by affiliating with Company I.

For example, boys between 17 and 18 1-2 will not be inducted if they enlist in Company I. This means they can stay home while they put in their army service. This includes one night a week of drilling and special training, and a couple of weeks at camp in August.

If they attend drill regularly and go to camp annually until they are twenty-six years old they will never have to leave home for army service, unless there is a war. In that case they will be in a better position for ratings than their friends who will be drafted.

Men home from the service also may enlist in the Warren company and will keep their rank. This enables them to advance as many have done, some receiving commissions which will hold in time of war.

Such a man is 1st Lt. Phillip D. Maines, who enlisted in Company I as a sergeant, a rank he received in World War II. He was advanced to second lieutenant in about eighteen months.

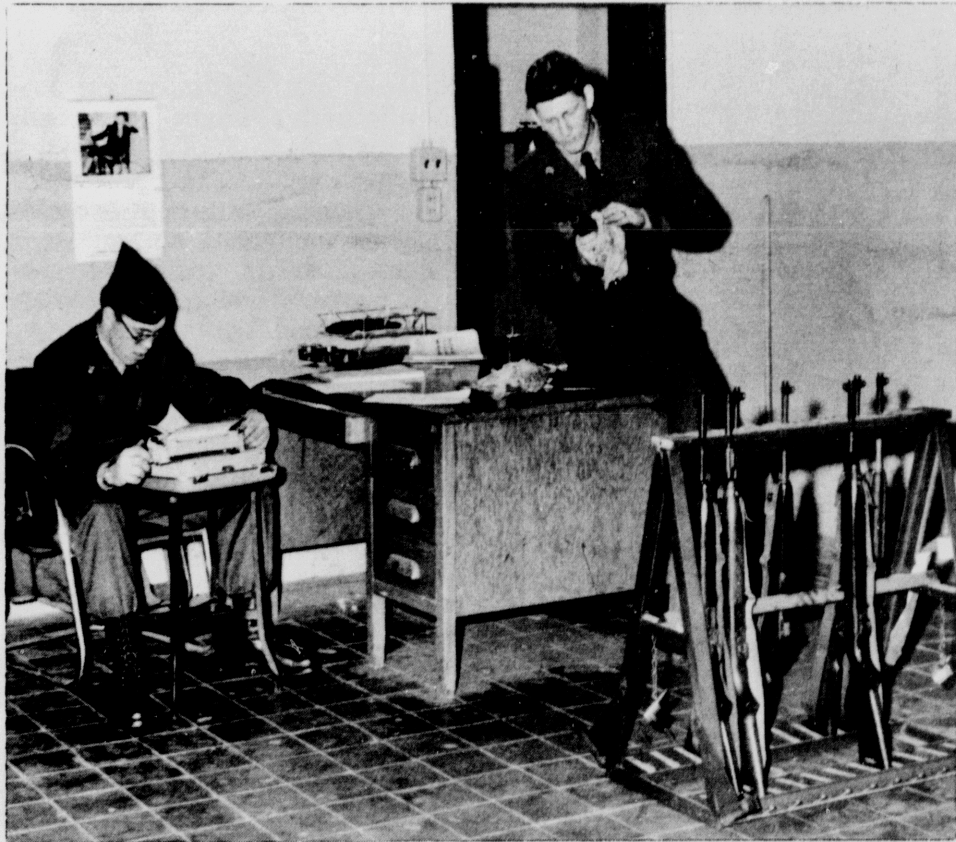

Since then he has been advanced

THIS DOES IT. A new boiler was part of the major changes last year. This keeps the large building very comfortable, and is helped by such alterations as new false ceilings which reduce the cubic footage.

CHANGE OF COMMAND. Capt. Irvin I. Kays, right, turns his command of Company I over to 1st Lt. Phillip D. Maines in the company commander's office.

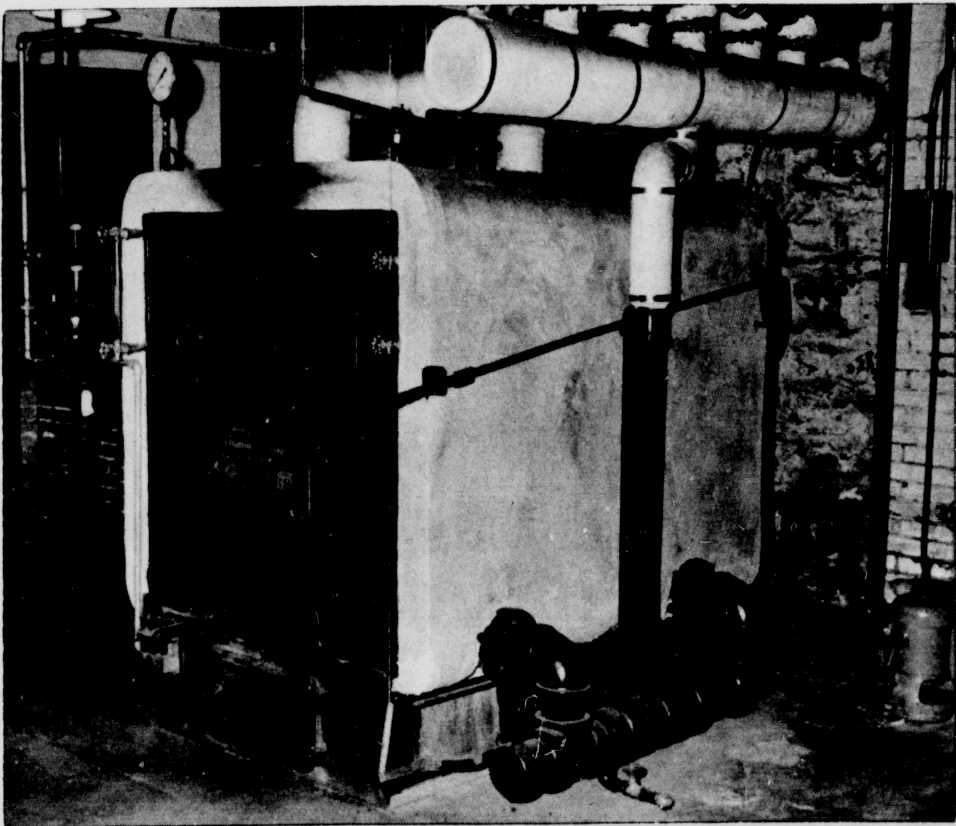

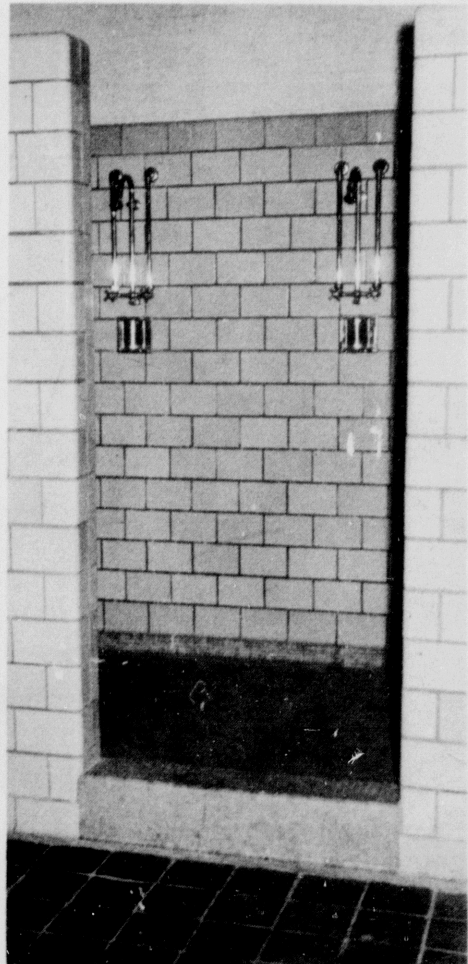

KEEP BUSY. While others are at class these boys are taking advantage of the time for paper work and carbine polishing.

FRESHEN UP. The new showers in the armory make it more attractive to those who want to use the large gym. The gym has been painted and could serve many purposes for the community if its potentialities were realized.

to first lieutenant and now is back from service in Korea. This week he took over the command of Company I.

The change of command took place Monday evening when Captain Irvin I. Kays formally handed Lt. Maines his orders. Capt. Kays has been assigned to the 3rd Battalion, 112th infantry at Ridgway where he will be operations and training officer.

WASHINGTON CALLING

By Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON. -- Perhaps the most curious appointment the Eisenhower Administration has yet made is that of Robert E. Lee to be a member of the Federal Communications Commission. Lee has no visible qualifications in experience or background for the post and his selection seems to have surprised him as much as it did his friends.

He has been associated with those who lead and finance the extreme reactionary isolationist right. That is the reason, apart from his lack of experience in the communications field, why some Senators have questioned his nomination.

First an accountant, then an FBI agent, Lee became director of investigations for the House Appropriations Committee. In this latter capacity he came to know Senator Joseph McCarthy, Republican, of Wisconsin. From the files of the House committee came the list of alleged Communists in government — ranging from more than 200 down to 57 as McCarthy spoke in various places — which first gave the Senator national prominence.

A little later when McCarthy set out to defeat Senator Millard Tydings with charges of a whitewash in the inquiry into Communists in government, Lee gave McCarthy help. It was not shown, however, that he had any part in the "back street" aspect of that campaign which was condemned by a Senate committee.

Much of the questioning of Lee during a brief hearing into his nomination by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee turned on his relationship with H. L. Hunt and the Facts Forum that Hunt finances out of his fabulous fortune in oil. Facts Forum gets well over a million dollars a year in free radio and television time with the claim that it is an impartial presentation of current issues and therefore an educational program entitled to free time. Hunt can charge the other costs off as an income tax deduction and he appeals for contributions on the score of the deductibility.

Recently Fact Forum's claim to impartiality has been challenged. The most thorough analysis of Hunt's whole operation thus far has been in a series of articles by reporter Ben Bagdikian in the Providence, Rhode Island, Journal-Bulletin. The series concluded that the "net effect" is "to disseminate fear, suspicion and divisive propaganda."

Facts Forum has sponsored the literature of racists and demagogues, some of whom are connected with fascist organizations on the attorney general's subversive list. After a careful survey of the Facts Forum radio and TV programs, reporter Bagdikian concluded that the pattern in the "both sides" broadcasts was to make isolationism, reaction and McCarthyism the alternative to treason or stupidity. He wrote:

"The results of this, if carried into the entire field of mass communications, could be to increase the pressures dividing segments of American society, to increase group hatreds and to implant suspicions which did not exist before."

Senator Mike Monroney, Democrat of Oklahoma, a member of the commerce committee, asked Lee about his connection with Hunt. He replied that he had been moderator on Facts Forum's first three television shows for which he had been paid $400. Later he said he returned $100 of this to Hunt. But he also said that he believed Facts Forum to be impartial.

This was the point at issue between Lee and Monroney, who expressed his fear of the creation of a great propaganda machine which by its very weight would tend to crush the kind of dissent and criticism essential in a free so-

Washington And You

By Margaret Chase Smith

WASHINGTON. -- It is reported that the Senate Republicans have a small crisis on their hands with the Senate Interior Committee unexpectedly reporting out and approving by a narrow margin a bill to grant statehood to Hawaii — and Alaska. Statehood for Hawaii has been fully expected to get Republican approval in this session and perhaps passage by the Congress. But up until the time the Senate Interior Committee reported out the combination bill there were no real hopes to get a vote on the proposal of granting statehood to Alaska.

This issue of statehood has too long now been charged with sheer partisan politics for which there is absolutely no justification. Statehood for Hawaii should not be a partisan matter since both the Republican Party and the Democratic Party have repeatedly pledged themselves in their party platforms to statehood for Hawaii. Both parties have run on that pledge — and have been elected by the people on that pledge. Statehood for Alaska should not be a partisan matter since both the Republican Party and the Democratic Party have repeatedly pledged themselves in their party platforms to statehood for Alaska. Both parties have run on that pledge — and have been elected by the people on that pledge. I repeat the very same statement on Alaska as on Hawaii for emphasis.

Why should the Republicans want to keep their pledge on Hawaii and not on Alaska? Because the Republicans believe that Hawaii would elect two Republican Senators and fear that Alaska would elect two Democratic Senators.

But this is not one-sided partisan politics. The Democrats are playing the game the same way only in reverse. They don't want statehood for Hawaii because they fear ciety. This is no idle fear. The power of the FCC over the mass communications industry, together with the timidity of those who control that dim industry, add up to discourage anything vaguely "controversial" and encourage reaction and divisive fears.

When former President Truman used the word "McCarthyism" in his reply to the Brownell charge that he had knowingly appointed a Russian spy to high office, Senator McCarthy demanded equal time on radio and TV networks. He warned that if any stations carrying the Truman talk failed to carry his speech, he would enter a complaint with the FCC. On the commission is his friend, Lee, and a second commissioner, John Doerfer, formerly active in Wisconsin politics and appointed with the approval of McCarthy and the senior Senator from Wisconsin, Alexander Wiley.

Recently Hunt made a personal application in competition with others for a television channel in Corpus Christi, Texas. He was permitted to change his application and then was awarded an uncontested channel by unanimous vote of the FCC, including the vote of Commissioner Lee.

One of the officials of the Eisenhower Administration deeply concerned over the threat of passage of the Bricker Amendment has heard that Hunt three or four times put up money to inspire a flood of telegrams favorable to the amendment. While this report could not be verified since neither Hunt nor anyone for him would answer a query, it may well be true. The Bricker Amendment, crippling the capacity of the Executive to carry out foreign policy and thereby repudiating the President's leadership, is in line with Hunt's anti-foreign, nationalist fixation. Yet the Administration has put one of Hunt's friends in a key position in the communications system.

it would add two more Republicans to the Senate. In reverse they want statehood for Alaska because they think it will mean two more Democratic Senators.

So my hat is off to those members of the Senate Interior Committee who voted in support of reporting out the combination bill to give statehood to both Hawaii and Alaska. It took considerable political courage for them to do so. But they kept the faith with the people in keeping the campaign pledges of their political parties, whether they be Democrats or Republicans.

I am most impressed by the political courage of the Republicans on the committee who voted for statehood for Alaska as well as Hawaii. It was more difficult for them to do this than for the Democrats to vote for Hawaii — for the simple reason that nominal control of the Senate as to the legislative agenda is in the hands of the Republicans.

Surely by this time after all the hearings and debate on the proposed statehood for Hawaii and Alaska the members of the Senate have decided in their minds if either or both is ready for statehood. Surely the matter on both Hawaii and Alaska should go to the Senate for a vote. Surely statehood for Alaska should not be bottled up in committee if statehood for Hawaii is reported to the Senate floor for a vote.

Therein lies the irrefutable logic and justice of the combination bill which brings Alaskan statehood as well as Hawaiian statehood to the Senate for a vote in this session. Surely it is as good an example of bi-partisanship as has happened in the Senate in recent times.

Whether Hawaii elects two Republicans or Alaska elects two Democrats may be of political importance to the respective political parties. But the national importance and the role of Hawaii and Alaska in the national security and the national economy is of far greater importance than political considerations.

WILDLIFE AUTHORITY TO APPEAR AT WARREN FIELD & STREAM CLUB MEETING

Dr. Logan J. Bennett, newly appointed Executive Director of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, will speak on "Managing Our Wildlife Resources" at the regular meeting of the Warren Field and Stream Club in Irvinedale School on Tuesday, February 9, at 7:30 P. M. This is an excellent opportunity for area sportsmen to see and hear an authority on wildlife management.

Dr. Bennett became well and favorably known to sportsmen in Pennsylvania during the period 1938-1947 while serving as leader of the Pennsylvania Wildlife Cooperative Unit at State College. During this period he appeared at a Warren Field & Stream Club meeting and his talk on the native grouse is still being discussed in local sportsmen circles. During this period he also served the U. S. Navy from July, 1943 to December, 1945 as head of the Navy's malaria control unit in the Southwest Pacific.

In 1947 Bennett was transferred to the Washington Office of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, serving as Chief of the Cooperative Wildlife Research Program until September, 1948 when he became Chief of the Research Branch.

Born in Festus, Missouri, in 1907, Dr. Bennett received his B. S. from Central College, Fayette, Missouri, and later worked for his advanced degrees at Iowa State College. In 1937 he received his doctorate for work on the ecology and management of the Blue-winged Teal, a study later published in book form which became a classic in the field of wildlife literature. He has written several other books and innumerable articles on wildlife, hunting and dogs. He is an expert on the training of bird dogs, especially for woodcock and grouse and his most recent book on this subject has gained national recognition.

'EDUCATED' DEER MEAN LIGHT KILL

Doe deer become educated "hunter-wise" during the antlered season, but most sportsmen apparently are unaware of this fact, according to field observations made by Dr. Ward M. Sharp, leader of the Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at the Pennsylvania State University.

A general scarcity of hunters afield was revealed in the recent two-day antlerless deer season in Centre county. As a result the doe kill of deer fell below the most conservative estimates in that area, reported Dr. Sharp.

More skill, time, and patience must be devoted to the quest of this wary, intelligent segment of the deer population if hunters are to be successful, the expert emphasizes.

WEASEL BOUNTY TO BE REMOVED

The Pennsylvania Game Commission, at its January meeting, acted to remove the weasel from the bounty list effective June 1, 1954. The Game Commission has paid $1 for the hide of this little animal for years.

Other bounty rewards will remain the same as at present until June 1, 1955. They are: $4 for each gray or red fox and $5 for each great horned owl, adult or fledgling, killed during all months excepting November and December.

Reasons given for removing the bounty from the weasel are: 1. No positive proof exists that weasels limit the amount of small game for hunting. 2. The high fur value of the animal assures a large annual harvest without special reward. 3. At least three-quarters of all weasels taken would have been killed at farms and elsewhere whether a bounty was paid or not. 4. Food habit studies show a great preponderance of the animal's diet is mice and other small rodents.

Trappers and hunters in Warren county earned $14 in December for weasels. And earned $4 and $5, respectively, for each of 21 grey fox and 69 red fox turned in. A total of $374 was paid in bounty commissions during that month. In Pennsylvania the bounty cost was $16,106, in December and the total for the year of 1953 was $74,103.

GAME COMMISSION TO OPERATE HOWARD NURSERY

On the 1st of January, this year, the Pennsylvania Game Commission leased the Howard Nursery from the U. S. Soil Conservation Service. The agreement is on a year-to-year basis.

The nursery is located two miles southwest of the town of Howard, in Centre County. It was originally established by the Soil Conservation Service. It was operated on a rental basis by the Pennsylvania Department of Forests and Waters for nearly seven years, ending December 31, 1953.

The size of the property is almost 77 acres, about three-fourths of which are used for the production of tree and shrub seedlings.

The Game Commission plans to use seedlings grown in the Howard Nursery on state game lands, farm game projects and other areas it leases in the state, to provide better food and cover conditions for wildlife.

REMARKABLE WILDLIFE CONSERVATION EXHIBITION

A fascinating exhibition called Deadline For Wildlife is open to the public at the Carnegie Museum, Pittsburgh. From it thousands of school children, and adults too, will learn what has happened in outdoor Pennsylvania before and since the white man's arrival.

The story unfolds as the visitor progresses through the hall. It starts with conditions in this area thousands of years ago and brings the viewer to the present time.

Throughout, it is beautifully and authentically done. Lifelike game and fish species and plantlife, three dimensional displays, a real waterfall, and photo murals are some of the devices used to realistically portray habitat groups and historical scenes.

PORKY IS UNDOING OF WILDCAT

Game Protector Charles F. Keiper, Renovo, Clinton County, reports: "Last small game season Paul Combs, of York, Pa., killed a bobcat in the Coudersport Pike area. Evidently the cat was 'indisposed' when shot, because its face and the inside of its mouth were full of porcupine quills. The emaciated wildcat had evidently tackled an offensive meal and may eventually have died of starvation. "Perhaps," mused Keiper, "credit should be given to the porcupine for predator control assistance."

THE DUKE PLAYED HERE

soon will be the proud boast of Warren residents. Duke Ellington and his band will be heard in the Library theatre, February 9, with the Warren Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsoring the appearance. You can buy tickets at Kinnear's store, on Liberty st., in Warren. And they are selling mighty well. About three-fourths of the supply is gone.

... heard 'round the world

Their palms were wet and their throats were dry. They felt awkward, and not quite sure what to do. But that small band of farmers stood stubbornly by Concord bridge—and defied the best professional soldiers of their time!

Not the muskets in their hands, on that April day one hundred and seventy-nine years ago, but the courage in their hearts gave America its tradition of choosing and defending freedom. The tradition of freedom that has grown strong to defend and preserve itself and give us our good American way of living.

In the hands of each of us, now, is the security of America. As each of us, individually, makes his home secure, we make our land secure.

Let the Minuteman of Lexington tell us that the preservation of our homes is our first duty, and our greatest privilege—the privilege for which he “fired the shot heard 'round the world.” Let him say to us forever that the security of our country begins in our homes.

Security can be yours through the Payroll Savings Plan

It's so easy and so sure! Just go to your pay office and sign up to save whatever amount you'd like put away for you each payday. It can be a couple of dollars, or as much as you like—it's up to you. After that, just forget it. The amount will automatically be saved for you each payday before you draw your pay. No temptation to spend it, because it won't get into your pocket! Then, when enough dollars have piled up—and you'll be surprised how fast they mount—they will be invested in a U. S. Series E Savings Bond, in your name, and the Bond will be immediately delivered to you. And the wonderful thing is that its value grows bigger and bigger the longer you hold it. Good 3% interest a year until maturity. Do you want to see just how much that can mean? Just look at the chart for examples.

Join the 8 million steady savers NOW!
Just think—eight million other workers are

PANOPLY WITHOUT HEART

Maurice Evans' stage performance of William Shakespeare's "Richard II" in 1937 was one of the most memorable theatrical experiences of our time. Hardly ever in the annals of the stage has an actor been so deluged with praise from the critics.

Richard Watts of The New York Herald Tribune called it "a masterpiece of distinguished acting . . . it stands high among the distinguished Shakespearean performances of this generation." Brooks Atkinson in "The New York Times" commented: "Maurice Evans deserves a sort of reverence for his triumphant performance. It is the genius of great acting." The other notices were similarly ecstatic, conceivably the finest set of notices any actor ever got.

I bring it all up now because the same Maurice Evans again donned the elegant costumes of Richard II in a two hour television version of the play last Sunday on NBC-TV. It should have been another triumph. It wasn't — and it's rather difficult to figure out why. I saw Evans' 1937 Richard and, if I had been a reviewer then, I would have echoed the wild plaudits of the critics.

But the Evans of today is not the Evans of 1937 at all. For one thing, he is sixteen years older; much of the youth and the fire and the sheer shimmering beauty of the performance has been lost. The 1937 Richard II was his first big role in this country. He had earlier attracted quite a lot of attention playing the Dauphin in Katherine Cornell's "Saint Joan," but this was his first starring role. He gave the role not only all his artistry but all of his heart.

Today, the artistry remains; the heart, it seems to me, doesn't. The Evans "Richard II" of last Sunday was a cold exercise in technique and this, of all roles, cannot be carried by technique alone. Richard, the playboy king who bankrupted England, foolish, vain, arrogant, was anything but a sympathetic figure. Yet his downfall — on the state, at least — is heart-rending. The TV version left me almost totally unmoved and I think this is because Evans never established himself as a human being; he was more a magnificently costumed vocal chord.

The Evans voice is a superb instrument and some of Shakespeare's finest, most gemlike poetry poured forth from the Evans lips with great clarity and precision and musical sonority. I could hear it; I just couldn't feel it.

"Richard II" was sponsored by the Hallmark Greeting Card company which shelled out $175,000 for the two hour TV drama. (Inflationary note: Evans' 1937 stage version, which was magnificent, cost just under $25,000.) It was staged in the old Warner Brothers film studio in Brooklyn, an immense lot, and its twelve settings, one of them almost a whole castle wall, were probably the most ambitious hunks of scenery ever seen on television.

I happen to like Shakespearean splendor and opulence. Shakespeare was writing of English kings . . . the English reverence for their own throne is not even dimly understood in this country . . . and the grandeur and panoply of kingship should be evident. If they are not, some of the outsize passions of kingship, which in Shakespeare seem a lot larger than those of ordinary mortals, are dimmed. In this respect, the Hallmark production was just fine.

There were also, I thought, some very distinguished performances by Kent Smith as Bolingbroke, by Frederick Worlock as the aged John of Gaunt; by Sarah Churchill as King Richard's Queen. There was even some stirring acting in the smaller roles — by Bruce Gordon as Thomas Mowbray and by Whitford Kane in a bit as a gardener.

While the cameras occasionally got a little too bemused with the scenery at the cost of the actors, George Schaefer's direction was in general excellent and a miracle of technical perfection.

Many television viewers claim their sets are bothered by WNAE-FM. The owners of the local station do not deny that this is possible but they have taken many precautions to eliminate such trouble. They are attempting to prove that they are minimizing such interference and suggest that you see for yourself.

Up on Reig's knob where they have their transmitter they also have a television set and they claim that it is not bothered by the radio transmitter. If it isn't bothered at so close a range it is reasoned that it must not be doing much of the damage claimed in other parts.

There will be those who will argue that this is not complete proof. Antennae that are located on hills across the valleys in such a way that the WNAE transmitter is directly between them and the source of the TV signal could be bothered.

Engineers who are supposed to know their business have been brought in here to make tests and one source of interference mentioned has been WNAE-FM. But at the same time they have accepted this as a standard type of trouble and have come up with traps to eliminate the trouble. This suggests that private antennae owners also can do something about it with expert advice and the right equipment.

The Warren station owners have a license to operate and in fact are more important to the Warren area than the distant TV stations. It is a credit to WNAE that it bothers to help eliminate the TV static, thus actually aiding its competition. These are bread and butter boys who are operating the WNAE station, and who now are expanding into Kane, and any sign of unselfishness rates at least a nod.

Sniff

How sad can you get? If you want to know, just spend an evening watching television plays. It's a crying shame.

Radio never was like this, and we suspect a great many people are going to wake up to that fact before long. They will be stringing AM antennae and working at getting a choice of good programs which still may be found if you improve your reception and are satisfied with not going blind while you confine yourself to good listening.

From the first we have claimed that TV is its own worst enemy. We can't wait until its broadcasting facilities improve sufficiently to give us a wider selection in this area.

Anyone can write a TV play. Just put down on a piece of paper how many tough breaks a man, or woman, or both can have, find someone to act them out in a monotone, and you have a play ready for the misty eyed fans.

It's easy! John works in a horse collar factory and is worried about his job because the boss thinks horse collars should be streamlined, like a Bardibowl. This worries John because his job is to polish the brass knobs that stick out at the top of horse collars used by beer wagon steetis.

He can't find much sympathy from his wife, Adora, because she is all wrapped up in her hobby which is mongrel dogs. John decides to prove that brass knobs on horse collars are the best and he goes looking for a horse to prove it. He can't find horse but he does find an ostrich.

Adora is furious because he brings an ostrich into the house to crowd her canines, but it is the last straw in the feed crib when they learn the bird is with egg.

Adora deserts her husband and elopes with a carnival Romeo who has a flea circus. The mongrels, the fleas, Adora, and the carnival fellow get along fine, but John is left with the ostrich, the egg, and a horse collar.

John loses his job when mules take over the beer wagon hitch. The fleas go to the dogs and the dogs bite Adora who gives the carnival man hydrophobia. John gets so hungry he eats the egg, and mama ostrich beats his brains out with her tail feather. She then sees this story on television and loses her head in the sand. The collar is awarded to the horse's neck who wrote this classic. (All rights, and lefts, reserved.)

WARREN MATMEN
CRUMBLE BROCKWAY

The Warren high school wrestling squad snared its sixth win in a row Monday night when the Barrmen racked up an impressive 45-6 victory over the Brockway Hi wrestlers at Brockway. The Blue and White dropped only one match when Bill Cummings was pinned by Lunberg. Wayne Miller, Don Brian, Den Brown, LaVerne Hanson, Chuck Eaton, and Don Cummings all pinned their men while Lou Cummings, Bob Miller, and Glen Cook decided their opponents. Frank Smith, a 154 pounder won by forfeit over Ray Patton to give Warren an additional six points. Smith and Cook are the only undefeated Dragon grapplers on the squad. They each have a record of 6-0.

Tonight the Barrmen will be at Beaty gym in a meet against the New Bethlehem. One week from tonight they will travel to Titusville for a match with the Rockets.

INSERT SPORTS
The Monarchs gained a tie for first place in the Warren Junior Hi-Y cage league with a 52-27 defeat of the Blackhawks. Rasmussen led them with a blazing 22-point pace.

DRAGON CAGERS DROP
TWO LEAGUE GAMES

After taking an early lead in the first half, the Warren high school cagers fell apart in the second half as the Massamen dropped their first league game of the season Friday night at Titusville by a 58-40 count. Gary Ettinger racked up 10 points to lead the Dragons in scoring. Duell and Dick also had 8 for Warren. Wayne Morris, who shot more foul tries than the entire Warren team, was the big gun for Titusville as he netted 21 counters. On Tuesday night the Bulldogs of Meadville rolled on in Section Two competition as they handed the Warren high hoopsters a 55-46 whipping in a well played ball game on the Beaty hardwoods. It was a close battle all the way with Meadville pulling it out in the final period. Again in this contest the locals did not shoot many foul shots compared to Meadville's foul tries. In the second half, Warren only shot two foul shots. Meadville outscored the Blue and White from the floor, 21-20.

Big 6 ft. 9 in. Lloyd Sharr dumped in 27 points to take high scoring honors of the evening. Eubanks also had 14 for Meadville. Gerry Gordon was high for Warren with 15.

This Friday night the Dragons will be in Corry for a league tussle with the Beavers. On Tuesday they will be home for a scrap with Franklin.

Next game for the Y boys will be against the Meadville Y varsity at Meadville on January 30.

In the other event of the day, the Y swimming team won over the Oil City tankers, 46-15. Warren won all first places with Jim Mahood, John Cottillion, Ted Phillips, and Roger Clicquennoi doing most of scoring for the Warren Mermen. In Y competition this season the local team has defeated Bradford and Oil City, while dropping meets to Erie and Jamestown. The next meet will be in Meadville against the Meadville Y on January 30.

SPORT SHORTS

WARREN HIGH school's seconds won their first game of the season Friday night at Titusville when the little Dragons came from behind to nose-out the Titusville JayVees, 39-31. After being on the short end of a 20-15 score at halftime, the Warren boys turned on the steam in the third quarter to out-score the baby Rockets, 18-2. Schaffer led the Warren team in scoring with 14 points.

THE FIRST HALF championship of the Gra-Y Basketball League was determined on the YMCA court Saturday afternoon, when the classy Jefferson cagers outpointed Home Street, 26-17.

Speedy little Pete Ostergard paced Coach Dave Olson's quintet with 13 counters. Phil Gahring also had six for Jefferson. Lind was the top man for Home Street with eight.

A DRIVE FOR members now is being made for the Warren Sports Boosters. They want at least a dollar for a membership but will take more. They annually hold a dinner for Warren high school lettermen, stage a home-coming smoker, and contribute money to the Hot Stove fund. Write Box 501, Warren.

THE WARREN ROCKETS moved into a first place tie with the Warren Merchants Monday on the Y floor as they scored a 53-47 win over the Youngsville Wiggers. In the other game, the Dukes tripped the American Legion five, 61-51. Last Thursday night at the Y, the Merchants drubbed the Dukes, 76-44, and the Rockets crushed the Legion, 71-52.

THE BLUEDEVILS had a rough time Saturday afternoon at the Y court, but pulled ahead of the never-say-die Guided Missiles with a 17 point third quarter to trip the Missiles, 58-54, in the Jr. Hi-Y loop. Jumping Jack Karkosky paced the Bluedevils with 18 points, while Daley was top man for the losers with 19.

BIG WINK Rickerson threw in 17 points to lead the Beaty Freshmen to their third victory of the season Friday afternoon at Titusville as the Warren five trimmed the Titusville Freshmen, 42-28. John Powley also connected for 10. Top man for Titusville was Frye with 8. The Beaty team, coached by Mr. Briggs, will play the Tidioute Freshmen Friday, January 29, at Beaty gym. Starting time for this game is 3:00.

BUYERS' CORNER

Up Goes Your Newspaper Price
Every year we seem to find another step taken in an effort to make the post office pay its own way. Many changes have been made, some of them not very popular with those who must pay higher rates.

The price of third class mail went up as probably it should have. At the same time there has been a gradual increase in the cost of mailing your newspapers and magazines.

President Eisenhower has given his approval to a bill which will raise the cost of mailing newspapers forty-two percent. This cost already has been upped ten percent on two recent occasions.

The low cost of mailing newspapers was established in this free country to assure freedom of the press and to protect the average reader. The city reader buys his paper on the street and the postal increase means nothing. But those who must receive their papers by mail are finding the cost going up and if the forty-two percent proposal goes through there will be sufficient cost involved to make subscription rates bounce upward.

Magazines depend on the mails for a large share of their circulation and they will find this an item to add to their already mounting cost problem in field that is loaded with competition.

Though press associations are saying that the big papers will not suffer as much as the small town papers, we believe the weight of those city dailies will prove very costly if we jump second class prices in chunks like forty-two percent. And they are just as hungry for every scrap of circulation as the small town publications.

But it is true that such papers as small town dailies and weeklies have a large percentage of mail subscribers. The weeklies are almost a hundred percent mail delivery. Weekly paper subscribers can depend on increased prices if the government removes part of the subsidy on free press.

To Make It Worse

While the press is being forced to pay more for its mail delivery the government is making peddlers out of its mailmen. It has now ruled that third class mail does not have to be addressed. If there are 4,000 homes in a town you can dump that many third class advertising or publicity pieces in the mail and the carriers will take one to every house.

This makes it necessary for the mailman to stop at every home on his route, and if very many take advantage of the ruling there will be days when more mailmen may be needed, either for smaller routes or to double up on the handling of existing ones.

There is some question whether this is economy, and certainly it is a slap at free press. This will not be fully answered until it has been thoroughly tried by the many who eventually will become aware of the possibilities.

One of the first of these is Lever Brothers Co. It is planning to mail free entry blanks for its Lever's Lucky Lottery to thirty million addresses in this country.

Here is another swing at the press. Newspaper publishers, and radio station operators also, have been forced to be very careful about the acceptance of advertising that suggests there is a lottery involved. But the post office department has ruled that the Lever lottery is legal and can be circulated through the mails. We believe a slight stretching of fact is being done here and we are sure the public should be very interested.

The first prize is $100,000, but the post office solicitor contends there is no consideration involved. He says there is no purchase, chance, admission ticket, payment, or substantial effort required. He says if it is required only to sign your name at a store to be eligible, consideration is not deemed to be present.

There is a fine line here that doesn't set well with us. We are sure some effort is required to even go to a store, obtain a blank and sign a name. The degree of effort is one for which we never have seen a measuring device. We suspect the public is getting the worst of this latest post office balancing act, and the post office includes the mailman who lugs those bags.

Candy To Cost More

The Wall Street Journal reports that the cost of candy soon will be increased by such leaders in the field as Hershey, Nestles, and the makers of Powerhouse. Though the price increase will show only in large quantities, the price per ounce will go up by reducing the five cent bars 12 1-2 percent in size.

Another effort to keep the size up and the price down is the substitute of less costly materials for chocolate in the covering. The cost of chocolate has boomed because of diseased cocoa beans in Africa and improved conditions in Europe which have resulted in a demand for chocolate in France, England, and West Germany.

Coffee Continues Up

Coffee breaks may become more expensive before relief arrives. And it may take two years of good crops to meet the growing demand. It was cold at the wrong time in Brazil last year and the crop suffered. A few bugs got into the act also.

Add to this the fact that coffee drinkers are increasing either in number or in thirst, or both, and you find thirty-three million bags (133 pounds each) being consumed annually. Brazil may produce a total of 14 million such bags this year, and Brazil provides about half the coffee.

Those who know the coffee market claim the increased use of the bean has been covered up by the heavy stocks placed in reserve during the war. They numbered about nine million. They now are down to three million and will dwindle further unless the coffee princes decide to hold it at that figure.

Relief from this situation will not come unless Brazil has two good yearly crops and finds ways of raising more. Meanwhile, tea is growing in demand. Try some. Milk isn't hard to take either.

Everyday Psychology
by Dr. Norman C. Morgan

Religion, law and order, psychiatric understanding of distorted personalities will never succeed in preventing catastrophic outbursts of man's primitive nature. Tragic as violence is to those personally involved, the experience of suddenly losing a friend taken for granted is unique. At such a time who has not taken stock of himself and profited therefrom?

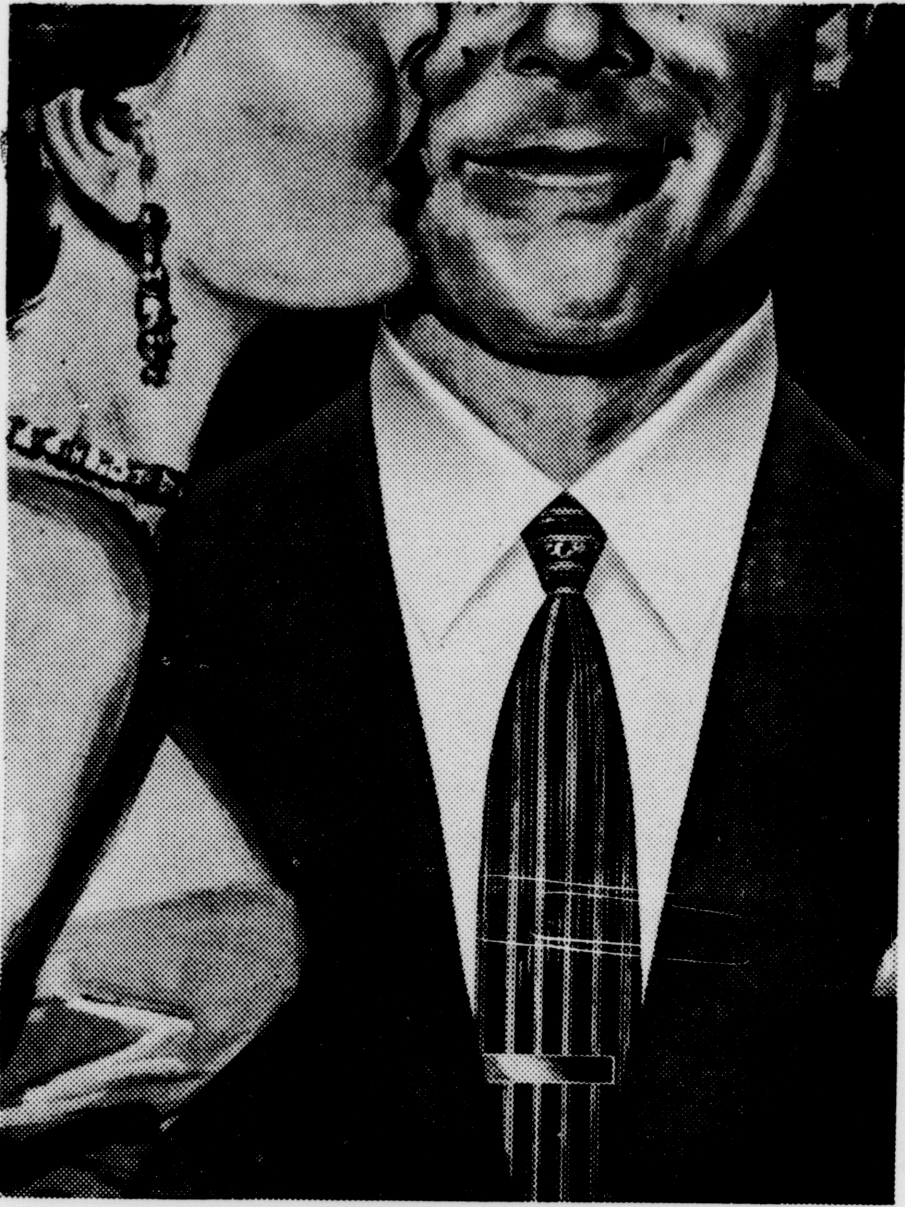

As I have written before, grief is one of our necessary emotions whose expression we must encourage. Bottled-up grief can be a great danger to later mental health. I am not sure that the pagan exaltation of the corpse by the mortician is very useful in expressing grief, but I am convinced that the religious rites of returning the body to the ground and committing the spirit to immortality has a real place in what we call the "emotional economy". Balancing the emotional budget is sometimes as difficult as balancing the family financial budget.

It is a normal and desirable tendency to accentuate the positive attributes of the deceased and to forget or forgive the defects. (Occasionally when the deceased was an enemy memory turns him into an extreme demon and we recall none of his charities.) After a few years or a few centuries, this process of forgetting, forgiving, and overemphasizing converts an ordinary mortal into a veritable saint.

In some ways perhaps it is better to remember that such a person was very human indeed and in addition had the energy and willingness to do many "good" things of which we ourselves are capable. When a person lives it is healthy that we should quarrel with him and oppose him on certain issues. There is no conflict with a shadow, but we can make it our ally. This shadow or spirit of the person which resides in our memory of them is a powerful force because of its mystery. The older the memory the more "pure", the more absolute, and the less subject to contradiction.

So long as it keeps some touch with human reality, these memories are real motivating forces in giving us a purpose and goal in our own lives. Indeed, if it were not for the fact that we experience these emotions through people in our own lives, the larger saints would fade away into the realm of the supernatural. They have really gained their meaning from people like ourselves who have died in humility.

Youngsville Considers New Library Building

Edward B. Day, president of Brokenstraw Valley school district, and L. L. Johnson, Warren county commissioner, have accepted positions of chairmen of the Youngsville Public Library Building and Finance Committees, respectively. The appointments were made by the president, Mrs. R. H. McDowell, at a special meeting of the Association held Monday evening in the high school library.

The committee to aid Mr. Day in the task of investigating the need and submitting plans for construction are Paul R. Getts, Laverne Hull, C. E. Anderson and Orval Borton.

Those chosen to support Mr. Johnson in developing a financial plan which shall guarantee future overhead and maintenance costs include Charles A. Jones, Lewis L. Crippen, Mrs. Gilbert M. Sanford and Mrs. C. R. Hooven.

The treasurer, Edolph Johnson, reviewed the financial status of the organization. He stated that the will of Mrs. Nora S. Russell bequeathed approximately $18,000 for construction purposes and a like amount for an endowment the interest of which to be used for overhead, maintenance and book purchases. The will of Mrs. Belle Kay included a lot 87 ft. x 100 ft. which faces College St. located across from the high school building and $2,000 in cash with a stipulation that the lot must be used for a library building or the entire gift revert to another beneficiary. At the present time the bulk of the funds are in government bonds which bring in an annual revenue of nearly $500.

Mr. Getts stated in a preliminary report that a contractor he contacted estimated a library 40 ft. x 80 ft. complete with shelving, books and interior furniture would cost approximately $80,000. This high estimate for the suggested public library indicated to the Association members the herculean task facing the building and finance committees.

OBSERVATIONS

By Bob Walsh

In a couple of months now a year will have passed since a committee was appointed by the Warren borough council to study the sewage plant problem. The plans were supposed to be brought up to date by the engineers so that a present day price could be known. There also was some hint of fast action before more school bond issues raised the cost of financing.

Except for the use of WPA labor to build most of the new sewers needed to serve such a plant, Warren never has done anything about the sewage plant except stall off the state orders. The state law says a town must have a sewage plant. It has said this for many years and the state has made little noises about enforcement, but we still have no plant.

The delay has proved costly to all concerned. The people of the state have had filth in their river for too many years. Recreational attractions have been reduced with an annual loss of income that has mounted into the many thousands, and it will cost a much fancier figure to do the job today than when officials of the past who boasted so loudly of the debt they kept off our back, began the stalling tactics.

They giggled and simpered about their cute maneuvering like a flock of adolescents. Tomorrow the people who will have to foot the doubled up bill might like to have them where the hair is short.

Today the stalling may be saving us money. Perhaps prices will come down. But we are skeptical about that possibility and we are sure that anything that will bring outsiders to our shores for pleasure will add to the area's welfare. If the deer season pays well for two weeks, the fishing, boating, and other water sports should do well by us during the warm weather months.

Council also was warned nearly a year ago by Solicitor Knox Harper that action concerning acquisition of land should be taken immediately. He suggested that efforts to make this more difficult, and in fact nearly impossible, were in the law mill. Warren needs some land between its border and the site it bought for a plant, if that site is to be made a part of the borough.

For this reason we probably should at least be taking some steps toward the completion of a needed job. Up to date plans, including the latest purification methods, knowledge about our sewer system, much of which needs attention before a plant is built, and other major items are confronting us before we start checking out the half million for the actual plant.

assistant treasurer; Mr. Robert Shiels, 2nd vice president; and Mr. Lynn Branch, treasurer. The election was held last Thursday at the board's organization meeting.

YMCA'S EXECUTIVE SECRETARY DAN WALTON waxing enthusiastic over the Y's new chapel which was officially dedicated at a dinner last week. The chapel is the gift of friends of the association who are interested in keeping the "C" in YMCA. The gifts were assembled through the leadership of the Christian Business Men's Committee of Warren.

If we don't act this year the legislature may beat us to it when it convenes in 1955. There is groundwork to be done in 1954.

Warren just missed violating a law. Not long ago a councilman suggested placing advertising on the top of parking meters. This was questioned by some and council didn't enthuse. The courts now have ruled that such ads are illegal and communities which have sold such space have been ordered to remove the ads.

Here is a big fat kudo to all reporters, editors, photographers, radio employes, and all of those who in their work with such mediums are eligible for the many national awards, but who never receive more than a faint pat on the back.

Every award that we know about including the Pulitzer, has to be sought. It doesn't just come to you. You must enter the contest as you would a horse race.

Thus it is seldom that the humble reporter who goes quietly about his job ever receives these juicy plumbs unless someone else enters his work.
